A Lobster at Dinner.

A writer in a foreign paper thus pleasantly refers to the habits of this peculiar shell fish: 'A lobster is a particular fellow in his food .-I have been watching one in my marine squarium. If a portion of food be thrown to him, he immediately sets his long horns to work to ascertain the whereabouts of his dinner. If he does not like it, he at once pushes it away from him, with an attitude of an epicure, who bids the waiter take away a plate of meat he does not fancy. If the feed is agreeable to him, he munches it up, moving his jaws in a peculiar way, like a weaver making a blanket. He tears his food into large pieces, leaving the actual pounding to be done by the very peculiar internal teeth, which are found in the lining of the stomach. When the lobster goes out for a 'constitutional,' and is not in a particular hurry, he carries his great claws in front of him, well away from the ground. He 'walks' upon the little legs which are underneath his body, while he keeps his horns moving in front of his nose, like a blind man tapping the fligs with his stick, as he plods along, led by his dog; hence I conclude the lobster is short sighted. If the least thing alarms him, he scuttles backward on his little legs, which move with the rapidity of a centipede. If he does not go fast enough in this way, he suddenly closes his tail towards him, like a man suddenly closing his hand, and flies backward with a jerk, like an indian rubber band snapped in half. He always goes into his cave tail foremost, and he takes the most wonderful good shoots at the entrance. I really think the lobster must have an eye in his tail somewhere.-Our pet lobster is not willing that the secrets of her toilet should be exposed to vulgar gaze, so the first night she was in the tank she artfully collected cockle and oyster shells, and made a trench around herself, after the fashion of the Romans when they took possession of hill tops. A branch of seaweed forms a canopy over her head, and she is at this minute in a house of her owo.

STEEL - What is steel? Many people may deem the question easy of answer, but it is really not so. It was long accepted as a truism in the art of science of metallurgy that steel is simply a carbide of iron—that is, a compound of carbon and iron, the former element being present in the compound to the extent of from one to one and a half per cent. This chemical all kinds of BUILDING BRICK, to be had at definition is now write supercoded. Stock has a CERMAN TO BRICK TO BE AND THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPERTY O definition is now quite superseded. Steel has GERMAN & FRANCIS' BRICK-YARD. become a generic term, and of the genus steel have been produced, which have the same general properties as ordinary steel, the carbon of which is replaced, either in whole or in part, by other chemical elements. Thus we have now tungsten steed, in which the metal tungsten is combined with the iron; manganese steel containing the metal manganese, and other PAUL & CO., Wholesale Grocers. steels containing chromium and titanium. In the cases just mentioned, the steel is invariably a compound of iron with onother metal; it is, in short, an alloy. Other species or varieties, however, contain non-metallic bodies as the steel-generating materials. Carbon is one of these elements, and therefore it is but natural Merchants. to suppose that such elements as closely resemble it in their chemical properties will be the most likely to serve in its stead. Silicon, or, as some modern chemists call it, eilieium, the basis of silicia or flint, is one of the nearest chemical relatives of carbon. Well, the French REAL ESTATE AGENTS AND AUCTIONchemist Caron has made silicon steel. Then there is the element boron, full cousin, as it were, to carbon and silicon, the basis of ordinary borax.

Steel has recently been made in Glasgow of most extraordinary hardness and cutting power when used for tools in turning operations. In one instance that has come to my knowledge, the tool did thirteen times the amount of cutting work of an ordinary tool of carbon steel. The process of making this new steel is at present kept secret, but there is reason to believe that it is boron steel .- Once a Week.

RADICAL CONCESSIONS .- The rabid Uincinnati Gazette concedes that at the Presidential election Kentucky Democrats "will go considerably nearer a hundred thousand than they have done this time." Moralizing on this, it

"I never knew an unexpected political result," said one of the most sagacious of our political observers—old Frank Blair, of Silver Springs-when gloating over the Democratic gains last fall, "that could not be explained by local causes. Local causes now may explain the gains in California. But when you see gains one month in California and the next in Maine, and some time after in Pennsylvania, you may be sure that more than local causes are at work. The phenomena must then be attributed, in part, at least, to the drift of public sentiment."

It is idle for Republicans to shut their eyes to the fact that for the last niteen months the drift of public sentiment has not been in all quarters in our favor."

STILL VOTING FOR STEVENS.—Everybody has laughed at the story, that in Berks county, certain Democrats continue to vote for General Jackson at ever recurring Presidential election. Of course it is a slander on the demoeracy of that old county; but it is rather a good sort of political joke. The Radicals of Lancaster county, do propose, however, in all seriousness, to nominate Thaddeus Stevens' corpse for Congress on Saturday next. An order to that effect has been issued over the signature of the Chairman of their County Committee, from which we make the following extract: "The undersigned, therefore, after consultation with members of the County Committee and others friends, would suggest that as a fitting tribute of respect to the memory of our most able and distinguished Champion of Freedom and Justice, the unanimous vote of the party be cast for the name of Thaddeus Stevens at the ensuing primary meetings." !-Lancaster Intelligencer.

YOUNG MEN,

Especially, who have become the victims of solitary vice, that dreadful and destructive habit which annually sweeps to an ultimely grave thousands of Young Men of the most excellent talents and brilliant intellect, who might otherwise have entranced listening Senators with the thunders of eloquence, or waked to estacy the living lyre, may call with full confidence.

Immediately cured and full vigor restored. This distressing affection, which renders life miserable and marriage impossible, is the penalty paid by the victims of impropriety .-Young persons are too apt to commit excesses from not being aware of the dreadful consequences that may ensue. Now, who that understands the subject will pretend to deny that the power of procreation is lost sooner by that the power of procreation is lost sooner by those falling into improper habits than by the prudent? Besides being deprived of the pleasure of healthy offspring, the most serious and destructive symptoms of both body and mind arise.
